Do You See What I See is a fast-paced mystery set in Charlotte, North Carolina, and Roan Mountain, Tennessee. When Sara Hill runs away to escape the abuse and torture of a child rapist and killer who also happens to be her mother's boyfriend, an incredible game of hide and seek ensues. While fleeing and masking her whereabouts for years, Sara continues to express her talent for painting, while also searching for answers about her family and the past lives of her relations. Sara eloquently tells the story of her life and the lives of her mother and grandmother on canvas. When these three generations of women are finally reunited, a remarkable portrait of personalities paints its colors on the canvas of life. Ghostly wonders begin to emerge, as fate, revenge, and karma exert their part in each of these women's lives. Stories of those living and dead are captured in grand detail on each spellbinding page, as you are taken on an incredible trip in time, where the present collides with the past. Sara explains how love, pain, and joy have affected her life, and she asks the question, Do You See What I See? Brenda Johnson Kreuzer grew up in Charlotte, North Carolina, but was born and spent every summer and most holidays in Roan Mountain, Tennessee. This is her first novel.
