Diary of a Madman Patrick Turley

Diary of a Madman finds Garrett Falkner lost in the modern world and ready to give up on life. Garrett is the average male, thirties, divorced with child who won't speak to him, and works in a cube for a boss he hates. Garrett is a tortured character and gives us a true view of society that we can all relate to. In an uplifting plot, examining the power of perception and through a series of spiritual experiences and conversations with God, Garrett revives his own lifeless existence. In a sense, Diary of a Madman is a modern Siddhartha with a first person, honest perception on life, relationships, spirituality and the modern world.
